N-STEM NOUNS

n-antāni

नन्तानि

N-STEM NOUNS

We've already seen one type of nominal form whose stem ends in n, namely, possessive adjectives formed with the suffix -in- (e.g., yōgī, balī, etc.). Those adjectives have a single stem throughout the paradigm.

N-STEM NOUNS

By contrast, most other stems ending in n have different strong and weak forms:

- strong: -ān-
- weak: -n- (before vowels), -a- (before consonants)

Although in some cases, when a consonant conjunct precedes it, the weak stem is -an- before vowels.

N-STEM NOUNS

Note that the variation between -n- and -a- in the weak forms is (underlyingly) a sandhi phenomenon:

Indo-European *CnC → Sanskrit CaC

Indo-European *CnV → Sanskrit CnV

SUPER-WEAK STEMS

There are a few nouns that form a “super-weak” version of the stem, where both the first and the second syllable go into the zero grade:

Strong	Weak (before C)	Weak (before V)	Meaning
yúvān-	yúva-	yún-	“youth”
śvān-	śvá-	śún-	“dog”
maghāvān-	maghāvad-	maghón-	“Indra”

	ēkavacanam singular	dvivacanam dual	bahuvacanam plural
prathamā (1 st ) nominative	yúvān	yúvānau	yúvānaḥ
dvitīyā (2 nd ) accusative	yúvānam		yúnaḥ
trīyā (3 rd ) instrumental	yúnā	yúvabhyām	yúvabhiḥ
caturthī (4 th ) dative	yúnē		yúvabhyām
pañcamī (5 th ) ablative	yúnaḥ		yúnōḥ
ṣaṣṭhī (6 th ) genitive		yúni
saptamī (7 th ) locative	yúvan	yúvānau	yúvānaḥ
sambōdhanam vocative

Inflection of yúvan- “youth” (masc.)

TO REMEMBER

Note that rājan- becomes rāja- (i.e., an a-stem noun) when it comes at the end of a tatpuruṣa compound, e.g., mahārāja-.

TO REMEMBER

Speaking of compounds, remember that bahuvrīhi compounds can change the gender in which a word is inflected, so you can see forms such as:

- sugṛhīta-nāmā (masc.nom.sg.) “one whose name is taken with great respect”
- bahu-janmānam (masc.acc.sg.) “one who has undergone many births”

TO REMEMBER

There are no feminine nouns ending in n, but when you need a feminine form (for instance in a compound), you generally use ī on the weak stem:

- rājñī “queen”
- sunāmñī “well-named”
